Confusion clouds election results in Waveland races

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Waveland candidates spent an uneasy Wednesday waiting for "official" voting results in the previous day's primary election as ballots were recounted in two wards.

It was believed Wednesday morning that punch holes in some computer cards were not sufficiently penetrated to record an accurate count.

A recount of Wards 1 and 3 was taken, thereby altering the unofficial results of Tuesday evening.

In Ward 1, Jeanne Garcia (125) and William Ruhr (130) will have a run-off election on Tuesday, Nov. 20, with the winner facing Independent incumbent Barbara Rappold on December 4.

Tuesday night's results showed Ruhr's and Donald (D.C.) Harvill's (88) totals transposed.

Beverly Zimmerman of the Democratic Executive Committee explained, "There was a mistake made when the numbers were taken from the tape to the pad. They were not brought over

Longo faces Frilot in runoff

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Waveland residents showed their true colors of red, white and blue Tuesday, as an estimated 95% of registered voters exercised the privilege of the polls.

In the Democratic primary, 1,897 votes were cast for mayoral candidates out of an estimated 2,000 registered voters. Official counts place incumbent Mayor John Longo with 726 votes, Stella Frilot, 611 and Russell Caldwell, 560.

Longo and Frilot will now advance to a runoff election on Tuesday, Nov. 20 to decide the Democratic nominee for the general election in December, where the winner will face Republican John Mason.

Longo said he would not be, doing anything different these next two weeks preceding the runoff.

"I've done all I can," said Longo. "It's up to the people now."

Frilot reported looking forward to the election, saying, "I feel confident the people will be with me."

She added, "I want to thank all my supporters and to promise them I will work even harder to win the last part of the race

Taylor wins big

BY TRACI BONNEY

Hancock County had a turnout of about 40 percent of its registered voters Tuesday, according to county election officials.

Of 21,000 registered voters in the county, 8,410 cast their ballots. In addition, the county circuit clerk's office received 57 affidavit ballots.

Only one of the 12 races in this week's election had two candidates for one post. In the contest between incumbent Gene Taylor and challenger Sheila Smith for the 5th Congressional District seat in the House of Representatives, Taylor won handily in both the county and the rest of the district. The local vote was Taylor 6,912 and Smith 1,182.

From his Gulfport office Wednesday, Taylor said, "I am really grateful for everything, especially the response in Hancock County."

He stated that working to balance the budget, keeping abreast of several Coast-related projects — privatization of the ammunition plant, the Corps of Engineers' freshwater diversion project, finding a safer way for NASA to test the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor, and more — and continuing his armed services and merchant marines work are the things that will occupy him during the upcoming term.

"I'll be in and out of the district a lot until the new session starts in January," he said. "I want to spend most of my time in the district, and go to Washington when the need arises."

In the senatorial race, incumbent Thad Cochran ran unopposed. He received 5,346 Hancock County votes.

In the District 8 Chancery Court judge races, all three incumbents — William L. "Bill" Stewart, Jason H. Floyd Jr. and J.S. "Johnny" Morris —

Veterans Day

Area organizations plan celebration

BY TRACI BONNEY

Veterans Day — It started in 1921 as Armistice Day (in commemoration of the end of World War I), and continues today as an occasion to honor all American veterans; past and present.

Locally, an effort is underway to combine the Veterans Day celebrations held by various groups. According to Clayton Thompson of American Legion Post #139, the American Legion, VFW and DAV posts and the organizations' auxiliaries are holding a single parade.

"This is our first effort in the county at a consolidated celebration," Thompson said.

The parade will start and end at American Legion Post #77 in Waveland. It will line up at 9:30 a.m. November 12 and start at 10.

The parade will go down Hillcrest Avenue to the beach, down the beach to Coleman Avenue, up Coleman to Central Avenue, across Central back to Hillcrest and end at the post.

John Wilkerson of American Legion Post #139 said the parade will include the local veterans organizations, the Hancock County school bands, St. Clare School's precision marching team and a 50-flag marching unit from Keesler Air Force Base.

After the parade, Rep. Gene Taylor will speak at Post #77. Refreshments will be served, and a brief ceremony will be held.

Afterward, a wreath will be laid at the Post #77 monument in memory of all deceased veterans. "Taps" will be played and a gun salute will be given.

County school board checks preparations for open house

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Hancock County School Board held its regular monthly meeting Monday, Nov. 5 with a checklist in hand for Sunday's open house at the new high school.

The school name and emblem will be in place, the gym floor will be installed, all minor roof leaks will be repaired. The archways to the vo-tech school will be hung and the science labs will be closer to completion.

District 3 board member Carol Bustetter informed the board on all the suggests she gathered at a school board workshop held recently in Jackson and presented Kay Sones with a certificate of recognition for attending various national and state gatherings.

The board moved

-to advertise for 11 word processors with monitors and 12 color T.V. monitors for the high school;

-to accept low quote for the purchase of door mats for the high school;

-to accept low quote for one Waste King disposer for Hancock North Central Elementary;

-to accept quote for a 30-pound dryer for the high school;

-to purchase anti-drug pamphlets, etc.;

-to purchase and install a scanner;

-to pay architects Thompson, Hansen and Fields for October draw;

-to pay debts in early child-

Almost a clean sweep

Five of seven amendments pass

BY TRACI BONNEY

As of Tuesday, counties in Mississippi must have five supervisors, and those officials must be resident landholders.

This lack of change is the result of the demise of a "constitutional cleanup" amendment, one of seven amendments put to the vote this week.

In Hancock County, the amendment was narrowly defeated by a vote of 3,756 against to 3,632 for, a difference of 124 votes.

Another amendment defeated locally was the seventh, which would repeal a section of the state constitution that requires the state treasurer and governor to publish and verify the balance of the treasury. The vote on this matter was 3,873 against, 3,538 for.

Statewide, with 93 percent of the precincts reporting late Tuesday, the vote on the treasury balance amendment was 150,197 for and 148,585 against. This count was too close to either kill or approve the amendment, according to an Associated Press report.

The other five amendments were passed both in the county and the state. The amendments and local votes were as follows:

Amendment 2: allows the state Legislature to establish a prison industries program, removes a provision requiring segregation of prisoners according to race — 4,496 for, 2,214 against;

Amendment 3: removes a requirement that the president of the senate and the speaker of the house sign bills in open session, provides that a bill be read in full prior to passage if a legislator so demands, and allows for a bill to be read only by its title — 6,281 for, 3,068 against;

Amendment 4: repeals a section of the constitution providing pensions for confederate sol-correctly."

Ward 3 was also recounted on Wednesday when the total number of votes recorded fell short of the number of people voting in the ward.

The official count left incumbent Curtis Colson (374) taking the Democratic nomination and alderman seat, as there will be no opposition in the general election.

On Tuesday evening, the count showed Clarence Harris (221) in the lead and Colson (185) following closely enough to require a run-off. According to Colson, the mayoral count was accidentally recorded for Colson and Harris instead of the alderman count.

Harris actually earned 125 votes, while Louis Brown received 89 votes.

Incumbent Ward 2 Alderman Bob Hubbard (231) took the evening with a 26-vote lead over Jay Fleuriet (205). Hubbard will advance to the general election to face Republican Sue Ashman.

The Ward 4 Democratic Alderman nomination was taken by Charles Piazza (271) in a landslide against Carlos Lozano (74), Bob Mulally (50) and Lin Rutherford (78).

Piazza will face Republican Stan Weidman in December. A Tuesday, Nov. 20 election will decide all run-off candidates.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I received a telephone call from a North Bay Precinct voter who was very upset by the amount of trouble she encountered in finding the precinct location on Tuesday.

The Bay High School complex is rather large, and according to the voter, better directions to the polling location were needed. She said it would have been impossible for someone with a handicap to get to the booth; there was no place to park and no one around to help a person find the polling place.

I have known this person and her family for many years and I know they are very concerned citizens who vote in every election. She told me Tuesday may have been the last time she casts a ballot.

I do not vote at that precinct, but I feel the election commissioners should look into the matter before we have another election.

Hancock High School's Hawks and the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws both will see play-off action Friday night in high school football.

The District VIII 4A champion Hawks will play host to McComb's Tigers, the District VII 4A runners-up this season.

South Pike, the District VII 4A champs will play host to St. Stanislaus, District VIII 4A runners-up at Magnolia Friday night.

Hancock's Hawks need to be really prepared for McComb's Tigers as their record of 3-6 can be very deceiving when one considers the number of 5A teams on their schedule.

Stanislaus needs to forget last week's encounter with an undefeated St. Paul squad from Louisiana.

South Pike and Stanislaus both have 7-3 records, and since the school from Magnolia is the defending state champ of last year, they will really be after the Rock-A-Chaws.

Hancock Countians need to overflow the new Hawk Stadium for the game Friday night. Hancock will need to have some very good fan support and play good football to move further into the playoffs.

The Rock-A-Chaws will need a lot of folks from the area to attend the game against South Pike, as I am sure the host team will have good fan support.

Best of luck to both Hancock High School and the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

Cochran cites President's signature on voc-ed bill

U. S. Senator Thad Cochran said President Bush has signed one of the most important educational measures in the 101st Congress.

President Bush signed the "Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Act" into law on Sept. 25, extending federal vocational education programs through 1995.

"This new law ensures that our federal education dollars will be used to meet the demands for a more competitive workforce," said Cochran, who cosponsored the bill.

"Progressive vocational education is crucial to the future of our nation," he said.

Senator Cochran, a member of the Senate subcommittee on education, said vocational education gives students the skills they need to take advantage of the new job opportunities in our state.

The new law includes a provision Cochran authored to create a "Tech-Prep" education program. The "Tech-Pre" program provides grants to states to establish a comprehensive program of vocational and technical training linking secondary and community college curriculum.

Senator Cochran chaired Senate hearings on vocational education in Mississippi last year to hear from educators and students involved in a model "Tech Prep" program.

Limited terms for state legislators in discussion

Public sentiment seems to be building in Mississippi as it is in several states for putting a limitation on the number of terms that state legislators and other public officials can serve.

Voters in Oklahoma gave the movement considerable momentum a couple of months ago when they adopted a proposition which would limit state legislators to a total of 12 years in office beginning with their next term.

Significantly, the legislators' term limitation constitutional amendment in Oklahoma came about as a result of an initiative put on the ballot by a citizens' petition, not because of any action by the Oklahoma Legislature.

Propositions for term limitations on state legislators were on the ballot this week in California and a couple of other states and were expected to pull a favorable response from voters.

In Texas, the issue of limiting the number of terms legislators and other office holders may serve got a good airing even though there was no proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot.

Rob Mosbacher, the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor in Texas, campaigned on a pledge that he would serve no more than two terms if elected.

He advocated an amendment to the state constitution to limit state senators and statewide elected officials to two four-year terms and members of the Texas House to four two-year terms.

Texas, like Mississippi, now does not have the power of initiating ballot propositions.

But in Mississippi the state Supreme Court has pending before it the legal question of reviving Mississippians' right to initiative and referendum which was snatched from them by a technicality in a questionable 1922 ruling of the state's high court.

Should the right of initiating laws and constitutional changes be restored to Mississippi voters by the court, many observers, including this writer, believe that a petition to limit the number of terms state legislators can serve would be among the first propositions to be advanced.

And if I am any judge of prevailing public opinion in Mississippi, I believe such a proposition would pass.

While the chances appear very slim that the Legislature will voluntarily approve a referendum on limiting the number of terms legislators can serve, several constitutional amendments to do that are expected to be filed for the 1991 legislative session.

One lawmaker, state Rep. Ken Strubling of Jackson, said if a term limitation measure ever got out of committee in the House, "I don't think many people in the House could afford to vote against it."

Strubling predicted that entrenched opponents of term limitation would concentrate on using the oft-used device of bottling up such legislation in committee. "That's one more example of why most legislators don't want to see the people have the right to initiate legislation," he said.

One of the reform rules adopted by the Mississippi House in 1987 limits to two the number of four-year terms the speaker can serve in that position. That rule, however, is one that Speaker Tim Ford has intimated he wants eliminated.

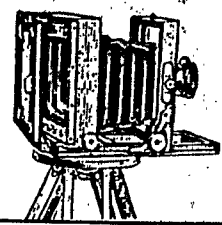

Ford contends that there is no limitation on the number of terms the lieutenant governor, the presiding officer in the Senate, can serve and, consequently, the House's presiding officer should not be subject to such a limit.

However, there has been a growing body of support in and outside the Legislature to limit the lieutenant governor to two terms, the same as was placed on the governor under the 1986 constitutional amendment which permitted gubernatorial succession for the first time in more than a century.

Lt. Gov. Brad Dye, now in his unprecedented third successive term, has opposed any effort to limit the number of terms he can serve.

If the people have their say, they might well decide that if two terms are enough for the governor, then it should be enough for the lieutenant governor and members of the Legislature.

That would certainly bring down the temples of power that now exist in the Legislature.

Hancock County voters Tuesday gave an overwhelming majority to President-elect Ronald Reagan and incumbent Republican Congressman Trent Lott. Some 5,100 voters in the county favored Reagan with only approximately 3,500 casting ballots for the Carter slate of electors.

The Hancock County Health Department in Bay St. Louis and most public clinics across the state recently exhausted influenza vaccine supplies. With the winter flu season approaching, the State Board of Health last month urged chronically ill senior citizens to be vaccinated before the state's limited supply of vaccine supply was exhausted.

Marsh land reclamation and conversion into usable areas is a subject occupying the thoughts of many in Hancock County, according to D. T. Click, soil conservationist. Thirty-three thousand acres of the county are in tidal marsh and most of this land is seldom, if ever, used, and W. W. Neely, biologist with the Soil Conservation Service who has made extensive studies of the acreage involved, doubts if expensive conversion costs would justify end result. "Perimeter dikes and drainage similar to reclamation process successful in Holland are not practical in local marsh lands," Neely said.

As will be seen in a report published on our local page of this week's Echo, the local fire company has at last definitely settled on the erection of a new hall building on their ground, corner Union and Second Streets. This building will be a large one and is to be made of all brick. Now, as the fire company is a local institution and its building to be situated here, we trust their plans will be carried out to the letter, and above all, that splendid rule of patronizing home industry will not be deviated from. Consequently let the new Firemen's Hall be erected by home labor and let the material consumed come from home enterprise.

A message from the taxpayers

Mississippi's financial crisis seems to be growing day by day.

Now the state faces a budget deficit in excess of $100 million for Fiscal 1991, and the Governor faces the prospect of deep slashes in existing governmental programs and activities.

But the greater problem may rest in the possible solutions to the problem.

The easy way out is to simply raise taxes. And, some legislators favor that solution.

Those legislators overlook the fact that Mississippi taxpayers, based on ability to pay, are already among the most heavily burdened taxpayers in the South.

The best way for state leaders to solve the budget crisis is to begin with an evaluation of budgeted expenditures. That evaluation should have as its goal the prioritizing of essential governmental expenditures with an eye out for elimination of those items which don't make the priorities list.

An example: start with the 6,100 employees added to the state government payroll in the last five years. Was creation of those jobs essential to the necessary and appropriate functions of government in Mississippi?

Most importantly, legislative and executive leaders of government in Mississippi need to hear this message from the taxpayers:

No tax increase before elimination of no-priority or low-priority expenditures.

This message need to be sent now.

Hancock Doll, Toy Fund makes Christmas merrier for many

Special to the Echo

From its humble beginning in 1973, the Hancock County Doll and Toy Fund has mushroomed into an organized effort which provides toys for more than 1,000 children.

In the first year of its existence, just 16 children received toys.

Former Chief Fayard recalled that two of the children were from Shoreline, a few from Waveland, and the rest from the Bay. At that time, there were no cash donations and used toys were the only source of gifts.

Under the administration of former chiefs Robert Gavagnie and Greg Richardson, the fund grew slightly, with rare financial donations supplementing the supply of used toys.

When present Chief Andrew Lizana took over, he organized the effort bringing it to the point it is today. As the parent of a large family he can empathize with parents who are unable to provide for their children at Christmas.

He set out to make the collection of used toys go on throughout the year. It is not unusual to see boxes of toys and bicycles in his office. This affords firefighters the opportunity to repair articles when they have spare time.

Financial support from the United Way and other donors have made possible the purchase of new toys and gifts for the children. County retailers have benefited, too, because of the chief's policy that as much as possible toys and other items will be bought locally.

City and state officials have become involved by initiating an annual car wash with the proceeds to be used for the Doll and Toy Fund. About a month before Christmas, it is set up at a local area, and if one wishes to have one's vehicle washed by the mayor of Bay St. Louis or a state senator, this is the opportunity.

Meanwhile, about two weeks after Thanksgiving, the Welfare Department starts to accept names. The Fire Department used to take the names, and still does on occasion, but found that the phones would be tied up too long with the many callers. The dispatcher then makes out index cards for each family to ensure that no one is forgotten or overlooked.

Toys are bundled in bags and boxes with the family name clipped to it. At least one new toy and several good used toys are provided for each child. As a rule the gifts are not wrapped in order to give parents the chance to decorate them as they wish.

This phase of the operation takes many days, and everyone at the fire department as well as their families are pressed into service. Sometimes parents make special requests such as "a soft toy that can be hugged," or "anything sports related." The chief understands these special needs and complies as much as possible.

As bags are completed, families are called and may come to the station to pick them up. Those who live too far away or who are unable to come have theirs delivered by firefighters or volunteers.

As Christmas draws nearer, the activity becomes more and more accelerated until at last all packages have been picked up or delivered and the end of the names has been reached.

ASRM permit hearing scheduled

The Mississippi Environmental Quality Permit Board has scheduled a public hearing concerning applications for environmental permits and a Section 404 Water Quality Certification, by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) for the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) project proposed for the John C. Stennis Space Center.

The meeting will be Thursday, Dec. 6 at 7 p.m. at Hancock High School, 7084 Stennis Airport Drive, Bay St. Louis.

The purpose of the hearing is to explain the proposed project and to receive comments from the public before proceeding further with the permit process.

NASA has submitted applications to the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality for a State Water Quality Certification in association with its request for a Department of the Army, Section 404 Permit, a wastewater discharge permit, and an air emissions permit.

The impact of the emissions has been evaluated and the staff of the Permit Board believes that, with proper constraints and limitations on NASA, this project will operate within all state and federal air and water pollution control laws and will protect public health and welfare.

The staff of the Permit Board has preliminarily decided to recommend that the permits and the water quality certification be issued containing numerous regulatory constraints specifically stated in the drafts. All public comments will be considered before the staff makes a recommendation to the Permit Board, or the Board makes the final decision.

The decision to issue or deny the water quality certification related to placing fill material in wetlands will be made by the Commission on Environmental Quality.

In addition to commenting at the public hearing, anyone wishing to comment on this project may do so by mailing comments directly to Dan N. McLeod, P.O. Box 10385, Jackson, MS 39289-0385.

The deadline for receiving comments is Monday, Dec. 10 at 5 p.m.

Additional details about the applications are available by writing or calling McLeod, (air), Ken LaFleur, (wastewater), or Robert Seyfarth, (wetlands), all at the above address.

The information is also available for review at the following locations during normal business hours: Department of Environmental Quality, Office of Pollution Control, 2380 Highway 80 West, Jackson; Hancock County Public Library, 312 Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis; and the Margaret Reed Crosby Memorial Library, 900 Goodyear Boulevard, Picayune.

Mark Harshbarger Wears The Same Face At Home He Wears At Work.

If we hired people at Garden Park Community Hospital only for their proficiency in clinical care—how quickly they can give out medication, how easily they can fill out a chart or how skillfully they can bandage a wound, we could hire the same people any hospital does. But we don't. We hire people for more than that. We hire them for their proficiency in patient care—how quickly they can drop what they're doing if a patient needs them, how easily they can make a patient feel comfortable or how skillfully they can listen.

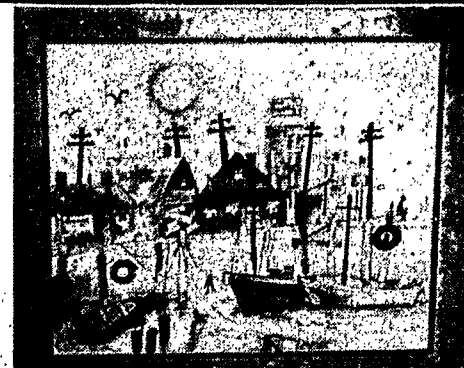

And because of that, we get the kind of people you won't find in other hospitals. People like Mark Harshbarger who put their best foot forward regardless of where they are. State-of-the-art technology? The latest medical procedures? Employees who can recite their clinical care manuals chapter and verse? You can find those at most hospitals, including Garden Park. Mark Harshbarger? You can find him only at Garden Park.

A unique gift for that hard-to-buy-for person on your Christmas list. Ideal for your spouse, parents, or friends.

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

Ho ho ho — or is it ho hum?

Christmas is fast approaching, and — Now, don't look at my column like that. I'm not crazy. Christmas is less than 50 days away.

As I was saying, Christmas is fast approaching, and with it comes the usual demands of the season — get-togethers to arrange, gifts to buy or make, and the 10 pounds you gained between Labor Day and now to lose so you can wear that special outfit you've been saving all year for the occasion.

Well, I don't have to worry much about arranging get-togethers. I'm single, so I don't have a husband or children to consider; my mom and her five sisters handle the reunion plans for her side of the family; and my dad's mother and youngest sister generally plan the festivities for his side. I also don't worry about losing 10 pounds to squeeze into something that looks great but makes me feel extremely uncomfortable. I quit worrying about my weight a long time ago. Most of my Christmas wear will be oversized sweaters and comfortable jeans.

However, the gifts for family and friends are another story.

I'm one of those odd artsy creatures who will plan dozens of wonderful presents and begin working on them, only to find myself sitting in the middle of a pile of fabric and yarn Christmas Eve, sobbing incoherently and trying to figure out what I will tell everyone whose gift isn't finished.

On top of that, my church

(Harvest Time in Pass Christian) is planning a Christmas crafts festival on the church grounds December 8 to raise funds for the children's church ministry.

It should be great fun. We're planning to have live music, food, a yard sale area and (of course) lots of craft items for sale.

Now, we have no lack of talented folks in the congregation. One of my friends very ingeniously turned three place mats into baby bibs for another friend's newborn daughter. We have knitters, crocheters, cross-stitchers and who knows what else among our members.

Of course I want to do my part. I'm a pretty good cross-stitcher, and I've been crocheting since the third grade. I can even operate a sewing machine if necessary.

However, if I know me, I'll overextend myself and sew myself into a corner.

So, what's the solution? Put all my yarn, material and equipment into a steel vault and bury it? Box it all and shove it into a corner?

Or maybe — just maybe — the answer is to plan my projects carefully, set up a work schedule and stick to it, and use as much of my spare time as is reasonable in finishing projects.

Nah, couldn't be.

ASSAULT-DISORDERLY CONDUCT

Investigator Nathan Hoda of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department reported three men were arrested early Saturday morning when Officers Gene Boswell and Alan James answered a call for assistance in stopping a disturbance at Todd's Mini Mart on Hwy. 603.

Boswell stated he had arrived first and attempted to break up a fight, when he was attacked from the side, taking a blow to his face, and was jumped from behind.

Boswell added James pulled up seconds after and radioed for assistance upon viewing the attack on Boswell.

Boswell said he and James received assistance within minutes from County Sheriff Dept. Officer Albert Biehl and Waveland Police Dept. Officers Kendall Ladner and Tom Antoine.

Three brothers were arrested, Doyle Patrick Dahl, 23, Mark James Dahl, 28, and Kenneth Lee Dahl, 33. Each was charged with assault of a police officer, resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace, according to the Sheriff's Dept.

Hoda reported the brothers were each released on $6500 bond.

BICYCLE RIDER INJURED BY CAR

County Sheriff Department Investigator Nathan Hoda reported that Hezzie Jelkes was hit by a car, Sunday, Nov. 4, when on his bicycle, he crossed over from the west bound lane on the Hwy. 90 service road, into the east bound lane.

The accident occurred approximately at 3:35 p.m. near Harbor Dr. said Hoda. No charges were brought against the driver of the vehicle involved.

Jelkes was brought to Memorial Hospital in Gulfport. As of Tuesday, Nov. 6 he was reported to be in fair condition.

LIFE SEASONS

From the "terrible twos" through "mid-life crisis" into the "twilight years," people pass through the same developmental stages. Today, the study of those stages and how they influence human behavior is providing new, provocative insights into sociological, biological and psychological clocks.

Now, Mississippi Educational Television Network viewers can learn about these findings and understand more about themselves in "Seasons of Life," a new five-part series of one-hour programs premiering at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8 David Hartman, former host of ABC's "Good Morning America," hosts.

Once again, we invite you to nominate someone outstanding for the Laurel Wreath Award

The Laurel Wreath Award is presented annually to a person who has made significant contribution to the Mississippi Coast community. Magnolia Federal Bank sponsors this award as a public service and exercises no control whatever over the selection. A panel of anonymous judges, composed of distinguished residents of the Mississippi Gulf Coast, reviews nominations and makes the final selection. You may nominate anyone you choose. It may be a homemaker who has demonstrated love for her community, a doctor, a clergyman, a worker, a school teacher. The only restriction is that, in your opinion, the person you nominate has made or is making significant contribution to the Mississippi Coast community. We invite your nomination for the Laurel Wreath Award. Mail or bring your nomination to: Magnolia Federal Bank, P O. Box R, Gulfport, Mississippi 39502.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

The story goes that Saltimbocca, that delightfully tangy veal and ham combination, reached its glory years ago in a restaurant near La Scala Opera House in Milan, Italy, where it was served on ever-so-dainty bite-sized rolls, so that the elegantly turned out ladies could just pop them into their mouths while hastening to the performance.

In fact, that's why this dish is called Saltimbocca—for that's what it means in Italian, I'm told—"Jump in the Mouth."

Many cooks and restaurants in America and elsewhere now make this dish with flat scallops or pieces of veal, topping with ham, but I still like to make it in the original, rolled form, in larger sized portions for luncheon or dinner, in the bite-sized portions for hors d'oeuvre.

And, in the interest of thrift, I often make this dish with breast of chicken instead of veal. At any rate, to serve six, dust a dozen thin, thin pieces of veal, each approximately four inches square, with a bit of ground sage (just a stingy pinch to each square) along with freshly-ground black pepper to your taste, and top each veal piece with a piece of thin-sliced ham.

(If you can find the true Italian prosciutto, fine; if not, use other ham, but thin, thin, thin, remember.) Roll up and fasten with a toothpick. Brown the rolls in a large, heavy skillet in four or five tablespoons of butter or margarine, until golden, then pour in a cup of dry white wine, cover and simmer for three quarters of an hour until tender.

A more Americanized version dips the rolls in a batter and next in bread crumbs before frying or baking. Still another calls for topping the veal with the ham, then with Swiss cheese, finishing with another square of veal atop, then pressing the edges together, then dipping first in flour, then egg, next in bread crumbs, before browning in butter over medium heat until golden brown (approximately five minutes.) Then, you swish out the skillet with white wine, and pour this over the meat.

If you find veal scallops at the meat counter or chicken pieces already flattened, fine; if not, the broad side of a kitchen knife, the rim of a soup bowl or meat mallet will to the job; just be sure that the meat is thin, thin!

Plan ahead for Thanksgiving dinner

Whether you're planning dinner for the family and relatives or just a cozy dinner at home, dual servings or a larger variety such as Hubbard for slicing and mashing.

When planning, remember one pound of squash makes about one cup mashed or two servings.

to variety, but each has a delicious flavor.

Refrigerate berries in their original package until you're ready to use them. Then simply wash them, and they're ready to pop into a salad or be used as an ingredient in your recipes.

There are many ways to fix cranberries. Simple, yet delicious, recipes are usually found on the outside of the package. This berry can mean convenience, too.

For a bright dash of color, open a can of cranberry sauce and garnish the meat platter with slices of the jellied fruit.

When planning the stuffing, allow one cup of dressing for each pound of meat. Your ingredients can be a variety of foods.

For the bread part, you can buy breading already spiced, or cube your own bread slices and add spices plus corn meal if desired. (Dressing makes good use of state bread you don't know what to do with.)

Then you can add onions, celery, and other ingredients to suit the tastes of your family. Put oysters or shrimp on your shopping list, too, for added flavor and protein in your dressing.

The key to your holiday dinner is to plan well and shop well. The result is likely to be a good case of overeating, but—it's only once a year.

So, enjoy a few special foods that you probably won't get around to for another year.

you'll find seasonal foods reasonably priced for the occasion, although prices are higher for most foods this year.

Choose your meat first—turkey, ham, beef roast, chicken, or seafood. Then select vegetables to enhance your main dish.

Sweet potatoes have long been a traditional item for holiday meals. This garden vegetable is right in season.

Select sweet potatoes that are smooth and well-shaped to avoid extra waste. Look for those that are plump, fresh, bright and clean. Buy only a few days ahead of use, as sweet potatoes do not store well in many homes for usually more than a week or ten days.

Handle as carefully as you would eggs. Sweet potatoes are a delicate vegetable and bruise easily. If you prefer to save on preparation time, buy sweet potatoes canned or frozen. You can find them in whole form, sliced or mashed.

Perhaps your family would prefer squash rather than, or in addition to, sweet potatoes. You can buy the Acorn, Butternut or Buttercup varieties for indi-

If you're a cook who likes to make everything "from scratch," you may still find a few fresh pumpkins for sale that survived the Halloween rush.

Select the small Sugar pumpkins for moist, tender pies. If you prefer, buy canned pumpkin and add spices to make your complete filling, or buy the canned pumpkin pie mix that's ready for the pie shell.

And, if you are not a baker, or really want to save time, most stores will have a supply of ready-to-serve pies.

Good anytime, apples are an easy addition to holiday eating. If you are having a crowd for dinner, add apple to your pie list.

McIntosh, Jonathan, and Cortland are especially good varieties for pies although Golden Delicious is good, too. And keep some apples on hand for "just plain eating."

Cranberries always bring a sparkling, festive look to a holiday meal. Buy berries which are firm, plump, and fresh with a high luster.

The cranberries will differ in size, shape, and color, according

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy
McGuire Caire

It's just about every cook's choice at our area supermarkets just now, with bargains for everyone, whether you're a hearty meat-and-potatoes cook or a dedicated vegetarian—or somewhere in between these opposite ends of the cooking scheme.

The prolific fall vegetables and fruits in colorful array at the stores truly put one in a cooking mood, don't they? I'm growing more ravenous by the minute as I sniff the tantalizing aromas coming from my kitchen. There's one of those bargain beef chuck roasts simmering in the Dutch oven atop the stove, surrounded by a few of the new crop potatoes, along with several of the sale-priced onions and carrots, in a heavily seasoned sauce!

I'm cooking up a few other dishes, also, so that I can spend most of the weekend out in the yard amongst plants while this wonderful fall weather is with us! There's so much to be done in the garden, such as my garden is! Hope the weather's still lovely when you read this!

In addition to the above-mentioned chuck roasts (which you can also use for your soup meat, or cut in cubes for stew, or whatever else you want) there are also good buys in beef shoulder steaks and ground beef.

In the pork sections of the meat counters, Boston Butt roasts are still offered at good prices, along with sliced quarter loins. Here's a tasty way with pork chops:

CRISP MUSTARD-BAKED PORK CHOPS

4 pork chops, 1-inch thick
2 Tbsp. butter
Salt, pepper to taste
2 Tbsp. Dijon mustard
Bread crumbs

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Melt the butter. Combine the bread crumbs (for this dish, I like to make my own crumbs, making two slices of bread into crumbs in the blender or food processor, but you may prefer to use ready crumbs) with 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper, and stir in the butter.

Coat both sides of the pork chops with mustard, and place in a shallow roasting pan. Distribute the crumb mixture over the chops, patting lightly so that it clings. Bake until browned, approximately half an hour. (Four servings)

Incidentally, this quick and easy method is also good with veal or lamb chops, or chicken breast pieces.

Packages of fryer breasts remain bargain at the stores, and team so deliciously with oranges or bananas or apples of Kiwi or other fruit. And, let's not forget the red grapefruit crop or the Washington State Bartlett pears!

A fruit medley, topped with whipped cream or yogurt, is a tasty ending to a meal. Or, just cut up the fruit in sections, and serve with a fruit flavored yogurt for dipping.

Fryer leg quarters and mixed parts, perennial favorites, are also a good buy this week.

It's time to stock up on staples, with all the good buys in the markets, from rice to pasta to canned pantry shelf favorites such as stewed tomatoes, whole kernel corn, cut green beans, beets and such.

A quickly put-together sliced beet and onion salad peps up a meal with little effort on the part of the cook, for example.

Rice, one of the more common staples found in Southern kitchens, is not only a good "stretcher" of main dishes, making the meat or chicken or whatever "go farther" at table, it is also a versatile side dish. Here's:

RICE AND GREEN CHILES AND CHEESE

4 cups cooked rice
2 (8 oz.) cartons sour cream
Pepper, salt to taste

3/4 cup (3 oz.) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
3/4 cup (3 oz.) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1 can (4 oz.) whole green chiles, seeded and cut into strips

Combine the rice, sour cream and pepper and salt, stirring well. Spoon half the mixture into a buttered 10x6x2-inch baking dish. Layer half the cheese and half the green chiles on top; and repeat layers with the remaining ingredients. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes, or until thoroughly heated and the cheese is melted. (Six to eight servings)

And, for another tasty accompaniment to your entree, try:

SEASONED RICE

1 1/2 cups uncooked rice
1 1/2 cups water
1 can (10 1/2 oz.) consommé, undiluted
1 Tbsp. chopped bell (green) pepper
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. soy sauce

Combine all ingredients in a large Dutch oven, and bring the mixture to a boil. Cover, reduce heat and simmer for 20 minutes or until the rice is done. (Eight servings)

Terry Thompson named magazine food editor

Terry Thompson, one of the nation's foremost experts in American cookery, Southern-style, has been named South Mississippi Magazine's contributing food editor.

Thompson's first book, Cajun-Creole Cooking, has sold more than 200,000 copies. She is also author of A Taste of the South and served as editor for The Cooking School Cookbook.

Having taught more than 10,000 students at seminars and cooking schools across the country, Thompson has contributed to many magazines, including Cuisine, Cook's, and Bon Appetit.

Her extensive knowledge of Southern food derived from working with master chefs and years of seeking out techniques, recipes and traditions kept alive in old Southern families.

She jokingly states that food is a "consuming passion" with her. Thompson's style combines the best of French—and "using the finest and freshest ingredients straight from gardens, forests and streams and the use of bold seasonings" from the South. Her recipes are fresh and innovative while steeped in the traditions of American cuisine.

A nationally recognized master of Southern cooking, she shares her expertise and includes recipes from her private collection, as well as those from the best South Mississippi restaurants, in South Mississippi Magazine's "South Mississippi Eats" column. Readers are invited to participate in the department by sharing their own special recipes, to be included in each issue.

Thompson lives in Diamondhead with her husband Pat and daughter Cory and a menagerie of animals. She says it's a perfect place to "stop and smell the magnolias."

Hancock Bank announces Merchants Christmas Showing

In an effort to promote local shopping, Hancock Bank has announced it will sponsor the second annual Hancock County Merchants Christmas Showing on Saturday, Nov. 17 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Located at the Hancock County Fairgrounds on Longfellow Drive in Bay St. Louis, the Merchants Christmas Showing will feature more than 30 local merchants selling their wares.

The show will also feature a fashion show, a visit from Santa, entertainment, door prizes and food. Everyone is invited and admission is free.

In a comment about the second annual show, James Ginn, Hancock Bank senior vice president and division manager, said, "Hancock Bank wants people to see that exceptional quality products are located in Hancock County, and it benefits our economy tremendously when residents do their shopping locally."

Supervisors discuss need for county youth center

BY TRACI BONNEY

Education and recreation for local children and teens were in the spotlight Monday as Bay St. Louis Police Officer Don Oco addressed the Board of Supervisors concerning the need for a county youth center.

Oco, who appeared as a local representative of the Boys and Girls Clubs of America, cited several statistics about the number of teenage pregnancies, abortions, runaways, deaths and drug overdoses. He pointed out that Hancock County is second in the state in teen pregnancies.

Stating that he thought part of the problem is the lack of places for young people to spend their time outside of school, he asked the board what it could do to help.

After several minutes of discussion, the board suggested that Oco look at the building currently being occupied by the county Welfare Department. When the department moves to its new facility on Longfellow Street, its present location at Necaise Avenue will be vacant. Oco agreed to the board's suggestion.

Ruth Thompson, president of the Bay St. Louis Business Association, asked for and received the board's permission for the association to use the courthouse vestibule December 1 during Red Ribbon Christmas activities to set up a Santa's Shop for children. The shop, which will be staffed by Princess Shoppe Teen Board members dressed as elves, will give young children an opportunity to buy presents for adult relatives.

The merchandise, Thompson said, will be donated by local merchants and will be priced at $5 or less. Proceeds from the shop will be used for the business association's Bay Middle School beautification project.

In other matters, the board: —approved a list of change orders for architectural and other modifications in the new county multi-purpose building; —voted to re-advertise for bids on labor and equipment to install electric lights and poles at the Washington Avenue pier; —accepted bids on sand for the road and bridge department;

—accepted the resignation of Jim Odom as assistant medical examiner, and the recommendation of Ricky Fayard to replace Odom;

—approved the claims docket for October;

—and approved October minutes.

The board recessed to its November 16 meeting.

Plane and people patiently wait on the edge of the runway for the show to begin. Mike Smith spokesperson for the Gulf Coast Experimental Airplane Group said, "I am very pleased. We had great weather, though we hoped for more people, the show was a success because it fulfilled its main function, to entertain and to provide education about aviation. Keesler discontinues sales of govt. surplus property

The Defense Reutilization and Marketing Office will no longer conduct monthly retail sales of government surplus property.

All property sold locally will now be sold monthly by public auction. The auctions will offer the same types of property in the retail sales, but with a much larger selection.

Purchasers will be able to pre-inspect the property for three working days prior to the sale.

The auctions will be open to the public and all property will be sold "as is," "where is" to the highest bidder. Bidders must be at least 18 years old and cannot be indebted to the government.

The next public auction will be Nov. 13.

Rocks debut in playoffs

Special to the Echo
BY TOM ACKERMAN

As the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws prepare for their first-ever playoff appearance in football tomorrow night at South Pike, several questions remain unanswered.

After suffering a severe defeat at the hands of the St. Paul Wolves, 41-6, last week, the Rocks will have to shake it off and come out in a winning mode.

"We didn't go into what I call the 'attack' mode against St. Paul," is the way SSC head football coach Ken Lyons put it after last week's game.

"We really didn't start in a playing frame of mind—everything went wrong for us. We were dropping the ball, causing turnovers, making a lot of mistakes that we hadn't been making all year. We just did everything wrong," Lyons said.

Another unanswered question is the strength of South Pike, the defending state 4-A champions. "We know they are beatable," Lyons said, pointing to South Pike's 7-3 record, the same as SSC's.

"They throw a lot, and have the screens and draws to go with it," Lyons said of the South Pike offense.

"Defensively, they use of 5-2, so we're not going to see anything different there," Lyons said.

And the Rock defense, there lies one of the main questions. Ranked as high as ninth in the state, the Rocks were virtually unable to stop the Wolves until the second half of last week's game. "I've never seen our defense play the way they did against St. Paul. We're much better than that," Lyons commented.

And once again, motivation seems to be key to the Rock-A-Chaws' preparation.

"I'm concerned about our getting up for this one (against South Pike)," Lyons said, referring to what would be needed for a win. "We seem to be a little down."

And finally, since this is the Rock's first football playoff appearance, will they be able to overcome the "jitters" that normally accompany such a game? Particularly since they will be traveling over two hours just to get to the game.

All of these questions will be answered tomorrow night as the Rocks travel to Magnolia. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Dist. champ Hawks face McComb Tigers

Special to the Echo
By Belinda Liles

Tomorrow night the District VIII 4A champion Hancock Hawks will host the McComb Tigers in the first playoff game for both teams.

McComb is the District VII 4A runner-up team and brings with them a record of 3-6. Their record does not reflect their true ability, since five of their losses came at the hands of 5A teams with the remaining loss to the defending 4A state champ South Pike.

Coach Irvin Favre stated the Tigers are very similar to District foe Harrison Central and again the Hawks will have their hands full.

Hancock will have to have the same type of performance they showed last week if they expect to win.

"Offensively, McComb runs several different sets that keep their opponents guessing.

"Their quarterback is 6'1" and weighs 190 pounds. He is fast and shows fine passing ability. They have a running back who is very similar to Hancock's Terrance Goff.

"These guys will have to be stopped if the Hawks are to be successful," said Favre.

"Defensively, the Tigers run a four four and play real aggressive. They are a bigger team than Hancock outweighing them by an average of ten pounds per man," he said.

Hancock's starting guard, Jonathan Fletcher injured his ankle during last week's game and may not see action this week.

Coach Irvin Favre also said a large fan turnout for this week's game would be most helpful for Friday night's game.

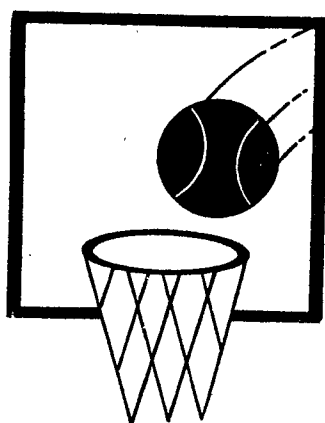

Kickoff time is 7:30 p.m. with gates opening at 5:30 at Hancock High School Stadium.

Raiders begin season with wins

The Coast Episcopal Raiders began their basketball season finishing second in the Natchez Trace Tip-Off Classic over the weekend. At home, they defeated Faith Academy Tuesday night, running their record to 2-1.

Last Friday night, freshman Tyrone Jones led all scorers with 24 points as the Raiders defeated Natchez Trace 55-51 in overtime.

The Raiders earned the victory in overtime after senior Bruce Hull nailed a three-point shot with four seconds left in regulation play.

In the overtime, sophomore Dave Hagan converted a steal into a lay-up, and Jones added two free throws.

On the night, Hull added 14 points, with junior Chris Painter tossing in 11. Dave Hagan added six, and junior Adam Farragut canned two.

In the championship game on Saturday night, the Raiders faced the No. 2 ranked small high school in the country, West Memphis.

West Memphis built an early 24-8 margin before the Raiders began their comeback bid. The lead was cut to 56-55 with 38 seconds left in the contest, but a one-on-one free throw attempt missed, and West Memphis held on for the victory 61-55.

Jones again led the way with 18 points followed by Hull with 16. Painter added seven, Hagan six, with sophomore Nathan Guice and senior Paul Bernadas each tossing in four.

On Tuesday night, the Raiders jumped on Faith early and never looked back en route to an easy 82-48 victory.

Hull led the way with 31 points and 12 rebounds. Jones added 26, grabbed five rebounds, and had five steals. Painter and Bernadas each canned eight, with sophomore George Hlass and Hagan adding five. Farragut pitched in three.

"The kids are working really hard. We're so much better than we were at this point last season," said Coach Jack Hutchinson.

"We still need some work and have got to cut down on turnovers. Hitting our free throws is a must if we want to be successful," said Hutchinson.

The Raiders travel to Bogalusa on Friday to play Bensford, then return home next Tuesday for a rematch with Bensford. The junior high game starts at 5:30 p.m. in the gym on Espy Avenue in Pass Christian with the girls and boys varsity games following.

Admission at Tuesday's game will be $1 and a non-perishable food item for the school's Thanksgiving basket to be donated to the Gulf Coast Community Action Agency.

Pregnancy center sets two-mile fundraiser walk

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay-Waveland Crisis Pregnancy Center is hosting a Two-Mile Walk for Women in Crisis Saturday, November 10. Registration for the walk starts at 9:30 a.m. at Bay St. Louis City Hall. The walk route is: Second Street to Hwy. 90 to Beach Blvd. to Main Street to Second back to City Hall.

Sponsorship pledge sheets for the walk are available at the center. Walkers who have $75 or more in pledges will receive a free t-shirt. T-shirts will also be available for $6 at the walk.

Proceeds from the walk will go to the center, said Linda Mullen, center director.

"At the center, we are trying to help the community reach women in need," she stated. "The number of clients who come into the center and the number of hotline calls are increasing rapidly."

"We anticipate a very busy year in 1991, and since we are nonprofit, we depend on fundraising and donations to keep us going."

Leading sailors

BMR enforcement officers gearing up for oyster season

Conservation officers with the state Bureau of Marine Resources are gearing up to prevent oystermen from getting a head start on oyster season.

The Commission on Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks, voted last week to set the opening of oyster season at 7 a.m. on Nov. 13. Any or all oyster reefs may be closed at any time if the bacteria in the water over oyster beds reaches a level that poses a health hazard.

High bacteria counts are usually caused by rainfall or river rises which flush mainland bacteria into the Mississippi Sound.

Pat Anglada, BMR law enforcement district manager, said that conservation officers will be increasing night patrols to curb oyster poaching in Mississippi waters.

"Like most crimes, most oyster stealing occurs at night," Anglada said. "It's against the law to oyster at night at any time."

Oystering at night carries a fine of up to $10,000, Anglada said. Oystering in a restricted area carries a fine of $2,500.

Anglada said that the public health may be put at risk if people take oysters from polluted waters to sell to the public.

"That's why we take oyster poaching seriously," Anglada said. "If someone catches oysters from polluted waters and sells them to an unsuspecting public, people could get sick or even die."

If eaten by humans, oysters taken from polluted waters may cause such diseases as hepatitis and cholera.

When oyster season opens, law enforcement officers will be on the oyster reefs enforcing oyster laws such as size limits, sack limits, gear regulations and boating safety.

Oysters must be at least three inches from hinge to bill to be legally harvested.

This year, the commission set a commercial oyster limit of six sacks per day for each licensed oystering vessel. The recreational limit is set by state law at three sacks per week.

No non-resident recreational oyster licenses will be issued this year.

The public tonging reefs in Graveline Bayou and the Bangs Lake area in the eastern Sound and on St. Stanislaus and Bay St. Louis reefs in the western Sound will be opened this year.

Mississippi's oyster dredging reefs, which include St. Joseph and Henderson Point in the western Sound, won't be opened for dredging or tonging this year because of a large number of oyster deaths caused by localized flooding and poor oyster development in recent years.

The Waveland tonging reef in the western Sound will also remain closed due to a high number of oyster deaths.

Anglada said the only legal methods of taking oysters this season will be by tonging or by "cooning," which is taking oysters by hand.

Anglada said that oyster fishermen must check in at one of the BMR's check-in stations before going onto the reefs. The oysterman must check out and have his oysters inspected at the same station when he leaves the reef.

"We know that checking in and out is an inconvenience to a lot of people," Anglada said. "But it's the best tool we have of making sure that polluted oysters don't reach the market and that only a legal number of oysters are taken from the reef."

Checking in and out also lets officers know if a fisherman is in trouble on the reef. "If he (a fisherman) checks in on a reef in the morning and doesn't check out, we'll go look for him," Anglada said.

Bay Junior High players honored

Brad Esteve, right, ninth grade defensive tackle, was leading tackler in the Junior High Tigers' game against Hancock. "He has been the most consistent defensive lineman most of the year," said Coach Rocky Gaudin. Freshman quarterback Sam Sheppard was honored for his performance against Pass Christian. He rushed four times for 38 yards and a touchdown and completed one of two passes for 14 yards. "He has improved consistently all year," said Gaudin.

The winner is

Wanda DiMaggio, left, stands next to the new 20-inch color television she won by purchasing a raffle ticket from Betty Didier. Bay High Athletic Club sponsored the fundraiser and the winning ticket was drawn during halftime entertainment at Bay High's final season game against Pass Christian. Bay High Players of Week

The Bay High Athletic Club has named Players of the Week for outstanding achievement on offense and defense during Friday night's game against Pass Christian. Number 12 Charlie Mitchell, left, was chosen Defensive Player of the Week. The senior safety is credited with three solo tackles, two assists and five initial hits. "He has been the leader of our defensive backs and one of our most consistent defensive players all year," said Coach Rocky Gaudin. Number 74 James Mayfield was named Offensive Player of the Week. The senior center "drew a tough assignment against one of the better line-backers in the area and played well," said Gaudin. "His leadership and football 'smarts' have stabilized our offensive line since he became a starter in week two."

Raiders basketball nationally ranked

At this time one year ago, the Coast Episcopal Raiders were about to begin the basketball season saddled with a 24-game losing streak.

One year later, as they prepare to take on West Memphis in the Natchez Trace Tip Off Classic, the Raiders are ranked seventh nationally, and look to improve on last season's 20-16 record.

Gone from last season's team are seniors Jamie White, Billy Guice, Scott Covode and Hutson Lambert. White led the team in scoring, averaging 19.1 points a game and also grabbing 10 rebounds. Guice averaged 11 points a game and pulled down eight rebounds.

Covode and Lambert, who also started several games last season, provided experience off the bench late in the season.

Returning players this season are seniors Bruce Hull and Paul Bernadas; junior Chris Painter; sophomores Nathan Guice and Dave Hagan; and freshman Tyrone Jones. New players are junior Adam Farragut, sophomores George Hlass and Frank Arrington.

"We lost a lot of playing time due to graduation," said Raider coach Jack Hutchinson, "but the good thing about last year is that the Raiders were searching for a winning combination, and early in the 1989-90 season, everyone had a chance to play. At one time or another, all ten kids on last year's team started," Hutchinson said.

"This year we're about 75 percent better than we were at this point last year," said Hutchinson. The key for us now is to make sure that we play together as a team, and if that happens, we'll be very successful."

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Sierra Club

How do you live off the land on Horn Island? Four years ago several of us from the Sierra Club were helping the National Park Service pick up garbage on the beach, mountains of it! I paused for a few minutes' break, wishing for a snack, gazing over the ocean toward the mainland shore.

A small object, bobbing on the waves, landed at my feet. It was an individual serving of grape-nuts flakes, out of the cardboard box, but still perfect in its little waxed paper container. My luck continued. Behind me I found an unopened can of beer, still good. I ate the grape-nuts flakes and my buddy drank the beer.

Who says you can't live off the land any more?

—H. Kohanek
At its November 15 meeting, the Sierra Club will feature Gail Bishop of the National Park Service, who will give a slide program explaining their efforts to clean up all of this marine garbage. The public is invited to the free presentation held at the Marine education Center in Biloxi (located south of Hwy. 90 just before you cross the bridge to Ocean Springs) at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 15. For more information call 435-2623 or 865-1508.

Tracking in style

Jane and Joe Brown from Stone County are the designers of the "Official Souvenir Hurricane Tracking T-Shirt" which has become almost a staple of Coast t-shirt shops since it was introduced earlier this year. The shirt, which has an accurate hurricane tracking map and a moveable hurricane pin, can be found locally at T-Shirt Bonanza on Hwy. 90. Audrey Island, owner of the store, said the shirt has sold well to both local residents and tourists. She added that, at the request of welcome center officials, the shirts will be on display at the Waveland and Hancock County welcome centers. (Echo staff photo by Traci Bonney)

Gulf Coast Newcomers Club

The Gulf Coast Newcomers Club will meet on Tuesday, Nov. 13 at the Best Western Beach View Inn in Gulfport. The social hour will begin at 11 a.m., followed by lunch at noon and a white elephant auction.

Any woman who has moved to the Coast in the last three years is invited to join. Call Jo Stanford at 832-2211 or Catherine Rhodes at 255-3332 for more information.

Pass names physics invention winners

The science wing at Pass Christian High School was the site of the first annual Rube Goldberg Orphaned Invention Fair on Tuesday, Oct. 9.

Rube Goldberg was a Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist in the 1940's who drew machines that did the easiest tasks in the most complicated manner.

The physics students at Pass High were challenged to build machines to accomplish a basic task using a series of simple machines.

The entries were judged by faculty members Gwen Lawyer, Dianne Wilson, Ken Matthew, and Principal Adrian Swanier. The fair was sponsored by physics teacher Janet Young.

First place went to the team of Hung Hoang, Nguyen Tran and Carolyn Moyer with their project which took five steps to turn off a light switch.

Second place team members were Noah Emerson and Kieu Anh Tran, whose project took five steps to extinguish a candle.

Blessings, both great and small

A group of Diamondhead residents with beloved pets in tow gathered at St. Thomas Episcopal Church for a "Blessing of the Animals" ceremony October 20. The Rev. Barry Cotter, vicar, read from scripture and blessed each animal, assisted by vestryman George Cassis. Clockwise, from upper right photo, John and Mary Sindors have their dog, Sara, blessed; Rev. Cotter with his pet duck; Joyce Baggett's horse receives blessing; Diamondhead residents await their turns; and Jason Porcello presents his pet hamster for blessing. Wilma Howell provided piano accompaniment to vocalists Dorothy Hope and Ken Anderson. (Photos by Luis Cordova.)

A 'Superior' feat

Contest Day: reflections through the eyes of a band director

Special to the Echo by Catchie Choina SSC Band Director
Saturday, Oct. 20 will be emblazoned in the memories of my mind for many a day. While most adults were concerned with what domestic task they would address on this particular day, I was wondering which child's mom would call me and tell me he/she was ill and would be unable to participate in the contest.

I found myself wondering who would oversleep? Who would forget a part of his band uniform? By 9 a.m. I had done a week's worth of worrying.

To my surprise, 70 teenagers and a dozen or so parents were at the St. Stanislaus band hall promptly at 9:30 with all of the necessary paraphernalia and with calm and smiling faces.

Without asking, band parents began last minute preparations of hemming slacks, sewing on uniform buttons and cleaning shoes. Seniors and section leaders checked to ensure all equipment was accounted for and cleaned instruments as instructed. Actually, it was all going much too smoothly!

On the ride to Milner Stadium the students were pen- sive. So far, no one had forgot- ten anything.

We arrived exactly at the time I had planned.

I had told my students to be sure to eat a good breakfast before leaving from home or school. I asked them not to eat before they performed. When was the last time you told 70 teenagers not to eat, and they listened to you?

Our 30-minute warm-up time was over, and it was time to move to the field. We all pray-

IN BRIEF

ELEPHANT MAN

The Jefferson Davis Players of Gulf Coast Community College will present Bernard Pomerance's "The Elephant Man" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 8-10, in the Jefferson Davis Camps fine arts auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

The play is based on the life of John Merrick, a 19th century Englishman who suffered from neurofibromatosis, a skin condition that resulted in tumors all over his body.

The story will be presented in a series of vignettes rather than a more traditional plot style.

Admission is $3.50 for adults and $2 for students.

For more information, contact Catlett at Jefferson Davis Campus, 896-3355, ext. 232.

Scharp, Lee chosen Mr., Miss Bay High

MIKE SCHARP AND JENNIFER LEE
MR. AND MISS BAY HIGH

Seniors Mike Scharp and Jennifer Lee have been named Mr. and Miss Bay High as a result of a student body election held recently.

Scharp, son of Roger Melvin Scharp of Layton, Utah, and Mrs. Sandra Scharp Rhodes of Bay St. Louis, is a member of the Bay High basketball, track and football teams.

He has received basketball defense, hustle, dedication and rebound awards, as well as an all-tournament award. As a track team member, he has been named District High Jump Champ and received the high jump and sportsmanship awards.

Scharp was recently recognized by the Bay High Athletic Club as Bay High football team's Offensive Player of the Week.

As a sophomore, he was named student of the month by the faculty. During his junior year he was elected junior class favorite and junior prom prince by his classmates. He is a member of Student Athletes Detest Drugs.

Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Lee, of Bay St. Louis, is an honor roll student, a member of Interact, Students Against Driving Drunk, and serves as editor of the Bay High yearbook.

She is also serving as vice president of her class and has just recently been chosen student of the month by the faculty. As a sophomore, Lee was selected class favorite by her classmates; as a junior she served as vice president of her class and was co-editor of the yearbook.

Lee's community activities include 1990 Miss Hospitality and 1990 St. Patrick's Day Colleen. She has been a member of the Princess Dress Shoppe Teen Board for three years.

EARTHQUAKE PROTECTION

Earthquakes are a peril that the coast has never been concerned with--up until now. It now seems with all the scientific data available that our area may well be affected by a fault line to our north. Most insurance companies will provide earthquake coverage by an endorsement to an existing Homeowner or Dwelling Fire policy as well as on Commercial buildings. You should call your agent for further information on this valuable coverage.

Our agents would be most happy to discuss this coverage along with your home and commercial insurance needs. Just give us a call at the number listed below, or visit our office at 114 Main St., Bay St. Louis.

SLIDELL MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Almost every hospital has the staff and facilities to safely deliver a normal, healthy baby providing there are no complications. Then, only the very best will do.

Slidell Memorial was the first hospital in St. Tammany to build a Neonatal Intensive Care Unit, and today, we're still the largest in the area and the only local hospital with two full-time Neonatologists, a High ed together and, at that moment, I cannot remember ever feeling closer to my students.

The band that performed before us was now leaving the field. I heard their closing selection, and I remember thinking they had a really nice, balanced sound. This made me even more nervous.

We moved to our starting position in dead silence. The time had come. While I nodded to the timekeeper to signal to the announcer we were ready to be introduced, that same feeling you get when you are in the waiting room of dentist's office came over me.

When the first whistle was blown by our drum major to begin the show, the band turned in the direction of the audience and the judges. The instruments, the flag girls' sequins, the new flags and new band uniforms were illuminated by the sun's light. It was a sight to behold.

The next 20 minutes are almost impossible to explain, unless you were there. All the bands were clapping and chanting their school's names and lending support to their respective leaders before them on the field.

Finally! The announcer turned on the mike, and never was a stadium packed with several thousand teenagers, parents, friends and band directors so quiet. You could have cut the tension in the air with a No. 1 clarinet reed.

As the results were announced, I saw children close, holding hands, possibly with someone they had not spoken five words to all year. I saw parents lending support to other parents and students they had just met.

When the announcer said our school's name, I think my heart stopped beating. I thought a thousand thoughts in those couple of seconds, several in particular:

Why am I in this profession? Why do I do this year after year? Why do I torture myself like this?

Then, I asked, did I hear the announcer correctly? Flag Corps, 1; Drum Major, 1; Drum Corps, 1; and Band Overall Rating, 1!

I stood up and grabbed the neck of the closest adult and cried. I heard my band screaming and shouting with sheer joy.

All of the little comments and complaints I hear every day, during rehearsals flashed before me:

"Mrs. Choina, I have a headache." (It's 5:01 p.m. (rehearsal ends at 5 p.m.)

"I have detention until I'm 21."

"I forgot to tell you, I have a doctor's appointment today."

"It's hot."

"It's cold."

"The ants are in my spot on the practice field."

"I can't wear my band shirt because it turned pink, 'cause I washed it with my mom's new blouse, and I haven't told her yet."

"I have a nacho stain on my (new) band uniform. Can you take it to the cleaners for me?" (It's Thursday 5:30 p.m. and the cleaners close at 5:30 p.m.)

Then there was the afternoon rehearsal I thought it would be really neat to teach a scatter drill. The band became unscattered. One of the clarinet players was lying on the ground with two broken wrists. (The child told his orthopedic surgeon exactly what happened, and the doctor, a former band member, said he didn't remember band being a contact sport).

Anyway, all of this sort of melted away as I saw my kids totally elated and full of pride.

For a couple of days all seems perfect until the reality of preparing for the next competition sets in.

I feel good knowing I was instrumental (forgive the pun) in giving my students a positive, educational memory that will last for a very long time. Almost any goal can be achieved through hard work, dedication and pride in knowing one did something better today than yesterday.

The trophies are tangible results of our ratings. The real reward is the knowledge that each band member contributed his own unique talents, which made the coveted title of "All Superior Marching Band" a reality.

Story Hour offers Thanksgiving activities

"What Is Thanksgiving?" will be the theme for this week's children's story hours at the City-County Public Library, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis.

Best Thanksgiving Book, Turkeys, Pilgrims and Indians and The Little Runaway were featured Wednesday, Nov. 7 at the City-County Public Library.

Children made Indian boy and girl hand puppets and viewed a finger play, "Five Fat Turkeys."

"Animals" is the theme for the story hour at the Waveland Library, set for Friday, Nov. 9 at 10:30 a.m.

Polly Want a Cracker, One Fine Day and Quick Quackers are the books to be read during the story hour. Children will make pine cone critters and view several finger plays. There will also be a physical exercise, "Here's A Tree."

Weekly story times are held at the City-County Public Library and the Waveland Library September through May.

Programs and activities are designed for pre-school age children, three to five, who are not part of a nursery or pre-school group.

Further information is available by calling Sandra Ladner at the City-County Library at 467-5282, or Karen Peoples at the Waveland Library at 467-9240.

LOCAL BRIEF

TRINITY STUDENTS

Trinity Christian Academy students Erin Manix, eighth grade, and Libby Gyins, kindergarten, were recognized for their collection of the most cash register receipts in the Apples for Students project.

They received certificates for free pizza lunches. Two awards will be given each month to the students bringing in the most receipts in the program.
